3. Communicating with WITS members and non-members

WITS collects personal data via the membership page on its website and event bookings pages on the WITS website or Eventbrite. It may be collected by email to info@witsireland.com. Personal data is collected via the WITS membership PayPal link on payment of the annual membership fee.

The legal basis that WITS has to process personal data is consent.

To comply with the GDPR WITS has a statement for members:

- about WITS
- our reasons for gathering the data
- the use it will be put to
- who it will be disclosed to a
- the legal basis for processing the data – consent (see GDPR doc p. 8)
- retention periods
- the right of complaint where members are unhappy with our implementation of any of the criteria
- whether the data is subject to automatic decision making
- their individual rights under GDPR i.e. subject access, to have accuracies corrected, to have information erased, to object to direct marketing, to restrict the processing of their information, including automated decision-making and data portability.

For student affiliate membership WITS asks first year students to confirm that they are over 18 years of age.

There is a shorter brief statement for non-members.

4. WITS GDPR Statements

Women in Technology and Science (WITS) GDPR Members Statement April 2020

Women in Technology and Science is a voluntary, independent organisation advocating, connecting and acting for women to benefit society as full and vital participants in STEM.

Women in Technology and Science holds personal information on all of our members, and for past members (up to five years). The term members covers all categories of membership.

Generally, this information is:

Name, Address (for receipts only), Financial data on association activities (e.g. membership fees paid or due), Pictures (usually of members and participants at WITS events), Data relating to term of membership (date joined, current membership status), Contact information (email addresses, phone numbers for events).

The personal data is collected via the membership page on the WITS website, emails to WITS and event bookings pages on the WITS website or Eventbrite. Personal data may also be collected via the WITS membership form. This data has been provided voluntarily by members and gives the legal basis that WITS has to process personal data as consent.

WITS maintains this data in electronic formats. Paper attendance sheets are used at events. Event data is held for the current year. Membership data is retained for five years. Any financial data is held for a minimum of 7 years, to comply with financial regulations.

WITS does NOT and WILL NOT share this data with any commercial organization except for the following:

- Data Processors such as MailChimp, PayPal, Eventbrite and Google.
- Media outlets (for Women in STEM stories)
- WITS also, from time to time, publishes data on members' activities with their consent on the WITS website.

WITS is committed to protecting members' data but we are obliged to obtain members permission to use this data, but only in the manner outlined above. Members should note that they must explicitly provide this permission. Without this permission, it is illegal for WITS to use such information in any way.

WITS is a voluntary membership organisation with no paid staff. WITS members who have access to the membership information in the course of their normal duties are informed of its confidentiality. All electronic data is stored in password protected files on local members' computers and in a Google drive only, and paper based data is stored in a secure location accessible to authorised Executive members only.

WITS undertakes to provide any member who requests it, copies of all relevant personal data held, and to delete this data should the member so request, and such data is not needed for WITS operations

WITS appoints a Data Protection Officer annually who is a member of the Executive.

Women in Technology and Science GDPR Non-members Statement:

WITS gets explicit approval from all non-members e.g. speakers and guests at events, to use relevant data (e.g. name and where appropriate biography to be published on our website or local and national media).
